THE most important point dealt with in the Retrenchment Committee's report, apart Colonial Secretary and Registrar-General. The amalgamation was recommended by Sir G. T. M. O'BRIEN, but the evidence of that official appears to us absolutely fatal to the proposal. It may be advisable to abolish. the office of Registrar-General altogether, but it is certainly not advisable to incorporate with it the office of Colonial Secretary. of opinion is adverse to amalgamation, If the proposal were carried out the functions of Registrar-General and Protector of Chinese would aimost inevitably be placed before those properly pertaining to the office of Colonial Secretary, and Chinese views and feelings would be given a preponderance in the administration of the Government, so far as the Colonial Secretary's position was concerned. In appointing a Colonial Secretary, also, the field of selection would be limited to the local service, and although we might occasionally find amongst our local cadets a man of sufficiently high attainments to qualify him for the office, this would necessarily be the exception rather than the rule. With the small number of cadets we have—it is large in proportion to the requirements of the colony, but small when taken by actual count—we caunot reasonably expect always to find it man above the average, and the Colonial Scoretary ought to be one in a hundred or a flousand, not one in half-a-dozen. In his memorandum submitted to the Retreach ment Committee Sir G. T. M. O'BEIEN says he considers that " a man of Mr. LOCKHART'S "abilities, local experience, and physique, with "the thorough knowledge of Chinese affairs "and the influence amongst the leaders of "the Chinese community that he already "possesses would be perfectly competent meeting to discuss telegrams and letters received and, in addition to that difficulty, probably in " to ad quately discharge the duties of the from Shanghal. "two offices, provided he had a competent assistant in each? From which it would to fill the next vacancy. And Sir G. T. The Colonial Secretary could " do the work of the Registrar General "L appeak of mysalf or any strangor coming a here, because where the Registrar-General " is socially useful is in his knowledge of " Chinese and in his personal influence with "leading Chinese, and no stranger would be worth a dollar a day in the Registrar-General's office. But given a Registrare "General who is a sufficient master of his " surroundings here in his own department "and thoroughly an fait with that work. presuming he is a good man and go d health, he might do the Colonial · Secretary's work as well?! So that what it cornes to is this, that when a vacancy occurred n the office of Colonial Secretary it would be filled, not necessarily by a man who had won his spurs in general administrative work, but by a sinologue and a persona grata with the Chinese. Such an arrangement would not be conducive to the good government of the Colony and would certainly not be acceptable to the European community.

the offices of Colonial Secretary and Registrar General and having an Assistant Registrar-General, but the general drift of Mr. Locument's evidence is in favour of leaving the Registrar-General's office as it is. The Committee believe that it is possible one officer could discharge the duties of Colonial Scoretary and Registrar-General, but are divided in opinion as to whether it is advisable from the general question of expenditure, is or politic that the amalgamation should take the proposed amalgamation of the offices of place. Two of the members are in favour of the abolition of the office of Registrar. General in so far as it is an office to attend hai wei to Chinese business, one favours its retention as an entirely separate department, and the fourth advises that one officer should be head of the two departments. It will he seen, therefore, that the balance and it is to be boped this view will prevail. It may or may not be desirable to retain the Registrar-General's office, but it is most undesirable that the Registrar General should also be Colonial Sceretary. Mr. KESWICK'S Four of the Chinese mon-of war were sunk, and experienc-, as stated in the report, "tended "to show that the Registrar-General is likely to become biassed in all matters relating to the Chinese and would be liable to think that he must be more or less bound espouse their cause." words which the Chinese have of later cars been compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in extenso. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are given the secents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typography displays the success of an attempt to make the Chineso and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of space, achieving a dearness not previously attained, and dispensing with those vast margins and vacant spaces which have hereforore characterized Chinese publications. To illustrate the vast scope of the work the following facts are submitted for consideration:-Chalmers Vocabulary contains about 16,000 Chinese characters, and Medhurst's English and Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, whilst this work contains more than 50,000 English words, and upwa is of 600,000 Chinese characters. Again, despite all the grammars and other elementary works as yet published, the student of this difficult language absolutely requires examples to display the various appliestions and equivalents of different words which have one general meaning. Of these examples this work contains more than five times as many as any other Dictionary hitherte pab-- For practical purposes the arrangement of the work is so complete, that a reference to its pages enables a person who understands English to communicate effectively with natives who understand nothing but Chinese. In this respect Fees: Port Regulations, &c., &c. the work will be found indispensable to all Europeans residing in China, and to the natives themselves it explains subjects fully with which very few indeed of them are perfectly acquainted. though printed in smaller type than formerly To parties resident in England and interested and condensed in every possible manner, con-Chine it cannot but be invaluable occasion, tains every year more pages.
